

Mr. Miller hasn't done everything yet. Mrs. Miller gets angry and they start a discussion. Below, there you can see Mr. and Mrs. Miller's to-do lists. Complete the dialogue between Mr. and Mrs. Miller according to the example. You can also use your own examples.

Mrs. Miller: Oh no, Peter! You haven't done everything yet. I am so angry!

Mr. Miller: Well, you haven't done everything either!

Mrs. Miller: See, you haven't packed your suitcase yet!

Mr. Miller: Yes, that's right. But I have already washed the car. You haven't cooked dinner yet!

Mrs. Miller: Yes, that's right. But I have already _____.
You haven't _____ yet!

Mr. Miller: Yes, that's right. But I _____.
You _____!

Mrs. Miller: Yes, that's right. But I _____.
You _____!

Mr. Miller: Yes, that's right. But I _____.
You _____!

Mrs. Miller: Yes, that's right. But I _____.
You _____!